The Rime of the Ancient Mariner (text of 1834)

BY SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE

Argument

How a Ship having passed the Line was driven by storms to the cold Country towards the South Pole; and how from thence she made her course to the tropical Latitude of the Great Pacific Ocean; and of the strange things that befall; and in what manner the Ancient Mariner came back to his own Country.

PART I

It is an ancient Mariner,
And he stoppeth one of three,
By thy long grey beard and glittering eye,
Now wherefore stopp'st thou me?

The Bridegroom's doors are opened wide,
And I am next of kin;
The guests are met, the feast is set:
May'st hear the merry din!

He holds him with his skinny hand,
"There was a ship," quoth he.
"Hold off! unhand me, grey-beard loon!"
Eftsoons his hand dropt he.

He holds him with his glittering eye—
The Wedding-Guest stood still,
And listens like a three years' child:
The Mariner hath his will.

The Wedding-Guest sat on a stone:
He cannot choose but hear;
And thus spake on that ancient man,
The bright-eyed Mariner.

The ship was cheered, the harbour cleared,
Merrily did we drop
Below the kirk, below the hill,
Below the lighthouse top.

The Sun came up upon the left,
Out of the sea came he!
And he shone bright, and on the right
Went down into the sea.

Higher and higher every day,

WE WILL ROCK YOU

"The Fisherman Mourned By His Wife" by Patrick Fernando (Poem/Glossary)

When you were not quite thirty and the sun
Had not yet tanned you into old-boat brown,
When you were not quite thirty and had not begun
To be embittered like the rest, nor grown Obsessed with death, then would you come
Hot with continence upon the sea
Chaste as a gull flying pointed home,
In haste to be with me!

Now that, being dead, you are beyond detection.
And I need not be discreet, let us confess.
It was not love that married us no affection,
But elders' persuasion, not even loneliness,
Recall how first you were so impatient and afraid,
My eyes were open in the dark unlike in love,
Trembling, lest in fear, you'll let me go a maid,
Trembling on the other hand for my virginity.

Three months the monsoon thrashed the sea, and you
Remained at home, the sky cracked like a shell
In thunder, the rain broke through,
At last when the pouring ceased the storm winds fell,
When gulls returned new plumed and wild,
When in our wind torn flamboyant
New buds broke, I was with child.

My face was wan while telling you and voice fell low
And you seemed full of guile and not to know Whether to repent or rejoice over the situation
You nodded at the ground and went to sea.
But soon I was to you more than God or temptation.
And so were you to me.

Men come and go, some say they understand.

BEOWULF

Listen! We --of the Spear-Danes in the days of yore, of those clan-kings-- heard of their glory,
how those nobles performed courageous deeds.
Often Scyld, Scef's son, from enemy hosts 5 from many peoples seized mead-benches;
and terrorised the fearsome Herju after first he was found helpless and destitute, he then knew recompense for that:-
he waxed under the clouds, throve in honours, until to him each of the bordering tribes
1 beyond the whale-road had to submit,
0 and yield tribute:- that was a good king!
To him a heir was born then young in the yards, God sent him to comfort the people; He had seen the dire distress
1 that they suffered before, leader-less
5 a long while; them for that the Life-Lord,
Ruler of Glory, granted honour on earth:
Beowulf (Beaw) was famed --his renown spread wide-- Scyld's heir, in Northern lands.
2 So ought a young man by good deeds deserve,
0 (and) by fine treasure-gifts, while in his father's keeping,
that him in old age shall again stand by,
willing companions, when war comes,
people serve him: by glorious deeds must,
2 amongst his people, everywhere, one prosper.
5 Then Scyld departed at the destined time, still in his full-strength, to fare in the protection of the Lord Frea;
he they carried to the sea's surf,
his dear comrades, as he himself had bid,
3 when he yet wielded words, that friend of the Scyldings,
0 beloved ruler of the land, had ruled for a long time;
there at the harbour stood with a ringed-grow,
icy and keen to sail, a hero's vessel;
they then laid down the beloved prince,
3 the giver of rings and treasure, in the bosom of the boat,
5 the mighty by the mast: many riches were there, from far-off lands ornate armour and baubles were brought;
I have not heard of a comelier keel adorned with weapons of battle and war-dress,
4 bill-blades and byrnies; there lay on his breast 0 many treasures, which with him must,
in the power of the waves, drift far off;
in no way had they upon him fewer gifts bestowed with the wealth of a nation, than those did 4 who him in the beginning had sent forth
